

Wan Anzu

Description

You are not simply referred to as supaida "the spider" for nothing. Just to drive home the point you make sure that everything about you has some form of spider theme. From the clothes on your back to the tattoo that covers your face. You leave nothing to chance that someone may not remember you from any sort of encounter. The same holds true for your online persona as your avatar is a orb-spinning spider. In person most people would describe you as mousy and unassuming, but in the digital world you savor complete control.

Background

One of the few surviving members of a hacker clan that called itself IV-VI (Ivy-6) until it was eliminated by EDADS, Anzu has that "always looking over his shoulder" mentality figuring that they would be coming for him any day now. After his friend Aragashi died under mysterious circumstances, Anzu fled to the protective umbrella of Arasaka. As a corporate hacker he not only has protection but he now gets a regular paycheck to hack into other systems. After three years he even grew to enjoy the internal office politics and considers himself a pretty major player in the corporate game.

Team

Given the state of the world, every team that does anything above simple smash-n-grabs needs a runner. While most teams are not graced with a runner of your skillz this one got lucky. Not only can you work with most of the off-the-shelf crap equipment found in corporate sites, but like any self-respecting hacker you are far better with your own equipment. Given the ability of Arasaka to get you some of the best NewEdge hardware you have been able to kit together a sw33t rig for yourself. Sure it would sometimes be as easy to simply have the jarh3adz slap some explosives on a door, but how much cleaner it is to just slice the lock and let any security prog think you really do have access.

Chun Midori

Why does everyone seem to dolt on him so much. Sure, he can kill things - so can any number of low-class thugs. Even given his best range of over 1000m on a kill you can kill from halfway across the world. You can even reach up high into the stars and kill if that is what someone wanted. The attention wasted on him would better be directed to your accomplishments. Instead, he gets everything and you get nothing. Even faint praise would be something.....

Banyu

Possibly the only person that sees your talents for what they are in this group. Although he does over-talk you occasionally he does help bring your contribution to Dai's attention. Even though he seems like he is straight-talking, you can see his second-face clearly enough. Janus should be his real name for that is how he behaves. In any meetings he points out both your positives and accents your flaws, but that is not the worst of his sins. Instead, not once has he invited you out when he cuts loose with Midori and Rafael. Sure, its not like you would have gone drinking and clubbing with him as their constant use of drugs has dulled their senses and addled their brains. But even the most socially ignorant would have at least extended an invitation.

Ge Dai

How can someone benefit so much from you and yet still ignore you and in fact fill your employee file with false lies and accusations. The fact that he is your corporate superior and yet intellectual inferior simply proves the unfairness of the universe. You could simply wait for universal karma to catch up to him, but sometimes one has to advance the effects of a chaotic system. Yes, sometimes a wrench has to be placed in the gears rather than wait for entropy.

Guang Jiro

A walking example of what happens to those unenlightened individuals that slave themselves to the metal. He is a dangerous man with very little interest in intelligent conversation and thus best to avoid.

Rafael Martins

You have dealt with his type before. The brash me-toos that hang around the popular kids in the hope that they will become popular. It did not work in your home neighborhood and it does not work here. Only a brainless idiot could possibly not see that he hangs on Kuno and Midori's words like they came from the lips of the gods in the vain and simply-minded belief that he himself has been elevated to their stature.

Wan Anzu

Possibly the most intelligent member of this team and yet everyone seems to just take his skills for granted. Its understandable given the limited view the unskilled have of the net and its possibilities, but that is still no reason to treat him like that. If nothing else you would think that the amount of information alone he provides would give him some mention, but it is like the others do not consider him a part of the team.

Wei Yumi

Like a statue on a pedestal in a gallery, she stands as a testament to man's ability to create beauty to hide the ugliness inside. There was a time not so long ago that you loved her, but that was before you found out that she was simply using you to get what she wanted. Once she got all of the information that you had she left you out in the cold once again standing alone. Below our standards, her face is very horse like and she has sharp knees - do not want.

Xian Ruri

You best lever in this group. A corporate drone that must sideline his superior to make his own climb for the top. He is not a made afraid to leave a few broken bodies or careers behind him. Thus he can be manipulated and controlled by simply using his natural passions and instincts.

Yu Tanaka

For all of his schooling he still remains on the net as little more than a monkey banging on a rock. Electronics are simply simple-minded toys to be bent to his uses and then discarded when the job is done. There have been times when he befriended you long enough to get some custom part or help in working through a problem, but for some reason Dai gives him the kudos for the job and he never mentions how much your suggestions helped him work through the problem. You would stop giving him suggestions except that he really seems to need them constantly.

Zhao Gin

Every instinct screams at you not to trust the doctor and so you do not. You have put out some strong feelers for his background and to date nothing solid has come back. You have a lead about a clinic in China that you are currently investigating, but it is not a solid lead.
